Water Smartly this Spring for a Beautiful Yard and Garden this Summer

With warmer weather just around the corner, we all look forward to spending more time outdoors. Here are a few tips to help conserve water and still enjoy a lovely lawn and bountiful garden this summer and fall.

1. One of the best ways to conserve water outdoors is to take advantage of spring and summer rains. A vegetable garden generally requires about an inch of rain a week to do well. If we've had a good soaking shower, you can probably skip watering your garden for a week.
2. To minimize evaporation, water your lawn and garden in the morning when temperatures are cooler.
3. Adjust your lawn mower to a higher setting. A taller lawn shades roots and holds moisture better than a shorter lawn.
4. Avoid watering your lawn on windy days when most of the water blows away or evaporates.
5. Check your sprinkler system for leaks and broken sprinkler heads and repair promptly, if necessary. Adjust sprinkler heads to prevent overspray on sidewalks or roadways. Also consider using a soaker hose instead of a sprinkler. Soaker hoses more efficiently disperse water to the soil.
6. Aerate your lawn at least once a year so water can reach the roots instead of running off the surface.
7. Potted plants sitting on concrete or asphalt surfaces during hot weather will lose water more quickly. If possible, move containers away from these areas. Water container plants thoroughly until water seeps from drainage holes. Thorough watering encourages deep roots resulting in less frequent watering needs. Apply water directly to the soil instead of showering foliage.
8. Group plants with the same watering needs to avoid over watering some and under watering others.
9. Use a layer of mulch on the surface of your planting beds to retain moisture and minimize weed growth that competes for water.
